WOMEN VOTERS OF CHICAGO WHO'LL "SWING THE STATE" JOIN IN PRAISING WILSON

Apparently Overwhelming Sentiment in Favor of President Found in Society Districts as Well as Tenements—'Down-State Vote' Divided

Marguerite Mooers Marshall of The Evening World staff has sounded the sentiment of the women of Illinois who will vote for President for the first time a week from today, and this is what she found:

That the 300,000 women voters of Chicago may, and probably will, swing the State and the Chicago women voters favor Wilson.

That there is plenty of Wilson sentiment outside of Chicago in communities which are claimed by the Republican campaign managers to be solid for Hughes.

That professional women—that is, women who are not in the salaried class—are generally for Hughes.

That the women members of trades unions in Chicago are for Wilson practically as a unit.

That the "wife and mother vote," as Miss Marshall characterizes the votes of the women who stay at home and attend to the rearing of families, is generally for Wilson, and that this condition prevails on Lake Shore Drive (the Fifth Avenue of Chicago) as well as in the tenement districts.

That eight out of ten of the pictures of candidates seen in the windows in districts populated by renters of small homes, or owners of two-family and three-family houses, are of Wilson.

That "He kept us out of the war" is a powerful slogan for Wilson among Illinois women.

That, with the exception of Mrs. Raymond Robins, whose husband is for Hughes, the Progressive women of Illinois are generally for Wilson.

That the general sentiment of the women of Chicago who represent the feelings of women who earn their living is that "Wilson is the friend of the ordinary man and woman."

(Special Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—In my despatch describing my search for the sentiment of the women of Illinois who are to vote for President for the first time next Tuesday, I told of finding quite an overwhelming Wilson sentiment in Chicago and Wilson sentiment outside Chicago in communities typical of the country districts of the State. I closed with the beginning of an account of my visit to a bazaar and sale of St. Elizabeth's Woman's Club at No. 1102 North Dearborn Street in this city, where the first woman I questioned was Maude Bailey, an attractive young woman, who told me she was going to vote for Hughes "because of the way he treated women and children when he was Governor of New York."

If Miss Bailey has any other reasons for voting for Hughes I wasn't allowed to hear them. Three other young women, laughing but shaking reproachful fingers, bore down upon her. "How can you, how can you!" they cried. "Why, we're all for Wilson. Don't you know that he's the best?" I left Miss Bailey to the avalanche of electioneering I had unwittingly loosed. In a room across the hall I found a blond, competent young woman selling chances on a sofa pillow. She was Miss Josephine Smith, a stenographer.

"How are you going to vote?" I asked.

"Buy a chance and I'll tell you," she bargained shamelessly.

"All right," I assented. "But now tell me honestly to whom your vote is going. I'm not buying that."

"You couldn't," she flashed. "I vote for Wilson. He's the friend of the ordinary man and woman. He believes we ought not to work more than eight hours, and we wouldn't if he had his way about it. Anyway, he did his best."

"And he kept us out of war. I don't want the boys to go to Mexico or Europe and be killed or wounded. They'll be safe so long as Wilson is President."

"He made good and I don't see why we shouldn't give him another chance. I'm for him, too, because of the child labor law, and because he voted for suffrage. But the big reason is be-

ROFRANO, RAILING, SAYS PROSECUTOR IS 'HOUNDING' HIM

Makes Bitter Speech from the Witness Stand Under Hard Cross-Examination.

IS SHIELDING A FRIEND

Refuses to Disclose Name When Asked About Flight After Indictment.

The exhibition of preparedness for his ordeal given by Michael A. Rofrano, on trial for his life in the Criminal Court Building, has caused astonishment, not only to the prosecutor, but also to Martin W. Littleton, his own attorney.

On his knees as he fought the cross-examination of Assistant District Attorney Brothers to-day, Rofrano held a canvas bound, leather covered ledger with green edges, in which he swore he had set down minutes of every bit of conversation with fellow prisoners and visitors in the Tombs. Artfully the Assistant District Attorney yesterday asked about such conversations. Rofrano drew the thick volume from the bagful of documents which he took to the witness stand and explained it was his "Tombs diary," kept to check against the lies of stool pigeons, such as it is your custom to plant over there."

Mr. Brothers, regarding the fat ledger with cold suspicion, began to-day's session by asking: "Have you looked at that diary since yesterday and have you found any more conversations with Heffler?"

Rofrano named half a dozen dates from July to September, saying: "That is as far as I've got."

Q. Did you speak to Heffler last night? A. No.

Q. Didn't he say, "Hello, Mike!" and didn't you say, "Hello, Al?" A. No.

ASSERTS HE DECLINED TO SEE HEFFLER.

Q. Didn't you send Jew Murphy to Heffler this morning to ask him to tell Mr. Littleton everything the District Attorney knew? A. I did not. Jew Murphy came to me and said: "Heffler is sore on the District Attorney for throwing him down. He wants you to subpoena him. So he can go before the jury to tell the truth." I answered: "Tell Heffler I want nothing to do with him, and if he wishes to communicate with me it must be through my attorney, Mr. Littleton."

Q. Is that in the book? A. It will be before night. I've left a memorandum of it in my cell.

The man who started life as a construction camp water boy and became the confidant of a Governor, a Mayor and the rest of the city rulers, and gained admission to the bar, was apparently enjoying the game he was playing with his life at stake. He smiled confidently at his attorney as he met the thrusts of Mr. Brothers.

Q. Did Heffler talk to you at any time about accomplices? A. I think not, but I can tell you by looking in the book. What is the date?

The accused man looked in the book under Sept. 19 and corroborated his memory.

Q. Did you tell Heffler that you had power to transfer a prisoner from Sing Sing to Clinton prison? A. No.

Q. Do you remember Heffler say-

MARINA SURVIVORS SAY SHIP WAS SUNK WITHOUT WARNING; 52 MORE SAVED FROM BOATS

U Boat Sent Vessel to Bottom in a Heavy Sea Far From Land.

SOME AMERICANS LOST.

President Still Awaiting Definite News—Not Government Ship, British Say.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Fifty-two more survivors of the British steamship Marina, torpedoed without warning last Saturday, have been landed. Thirteen are still missing and United States Consul Wesley Frost at Queenstown believes they are dead. He also reports that some of the dead were probably Americans. His report to the American Embassy is as follows:

"Fifty-two more survivors of the Marina landed at Castletown Pier, only thirteen now missing, believed dead. Not less than thirty-six Americans aboard, of whom sixteen saved at Crookhaven. There will probably be some American fatalities. Survivors state the vessel was torpedoed without warning in heavy sea, sank within ten minutes."

Mr. Frost is obtaining affidavits from survivors and ascertaining how many Americans are among the Castletown survivors.

The American Embassy to-day received a telegram from the American Consul at Glasgow, stating that the Marina left Glasgow October 25 for Baltimore and Newport News, with fifty Americans aboard.

Frost's despatches reached the embassy half an hour after press reports from Queenstown stated that from fifty to eighty-five of the Marina's crew had perished. One correspondent wired that thirty-five Americans lost their lives. It is assumed that these despatches were filed before word reached Queenstown of the landing of more survivors at Castletown.

A private telegram received to-day from Crookhaven by Robert P. Skinner, American Consul General, says that among the survivors from the Marina is Frank Howard Smith, a veterinary surgeon.

The Marina was first struck amidships. A terrific explosion occurred on the starboard side. The second torpedo struck the bow and the steamship went down almost immediately in two parts. It is reported seven men were killed while attempting to get into boats.

Salvors saw the wake of a torpedo, according to these advices, and until the ship was struck thought it was a fish.

It is believed at the Embassy that Frost already is en route to Crookhaven or Castletown to obtain affidavits from the American survivors. Summaries of the contents of these affidavits will be cabled to the State Department at once. The Admiralty has begun another investigation. Government officials deny that the Marina was under government charter.

SON SHOOTING AND KILLS FATHER IN HIS OFFICE.

SAINTON, Md., Oct. 31.—H. S. Langdale, member of the Eastern Utilities Commission, was killed in his office this morning by his twenty-year-old son, Bryan, who emptied a charge of shot into his back. The son, who has been in a street since the shooting, was arrested immediately and is held in the jail here.

MISS HARRIMAN INJURED AS MOUNT FALLS IN HUNT

Returns to Her Arden Home After Physician Attends Her Shoulder.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Miss Carol A. Harriman, daughter of Mrs. E. H. Harriman, was injured yesterday while following the Glen Arden Hunt, of which she is one of the masters. The pack of hounds jumped a fox at Green Hill Farm, two miles from here. Irish Hilder, the horse Miss Harriman was riding, fell in jumping a fence and her shoulder was hurt. A physician attended to her and she then returned to her home at Arden.

Miss Harriman is an accomplished horsewoman and has exhibited at the New York Horse Show. Yesterday's injury was not her first, but she has managed always to escape with slight bruises.

The report of the disbursements of the Republican National Committee up to ten days before election, as required by law, was made public to-day. BET WHITMAN WILL LEAD HUGHES BY 50,000 VOTES

Some Wilson Men Make Wagers at Evens on Presidential Race but Most Want 10 to 8.

More than $5,000 has been wagered that Whitman will carry New York State by 100,000 on the declaration that he will run 25,000 to 50,000 ahead of Hughes.

Odds in the early afternoon were quoted on the curb as 7 to 10 wanted by Wilson supporters, with 10 to 9 offered by the Hughes crowd.

More than $10,000 was offered on the curb yesterday at even money that Wilson would carry Ohio. There were no takers.

Some of the largest bets on the President come from Nevada and the Pacific Coast. It is said $50,000 from this section has been placed at 8 to 10. Most Wilson men, however, are willing to take odds of 10 to 9 and 10 to 8.

Odds of 2 to 1 that Wilson will carry Greater New York by 50,000 are offered freely, while it is even money he will carry Kings County. In the New York State race, Hughes continues a 10 to 7 favorite.

BERLIN REPORTS REPULSE OF ATTACKS ON SOMME FRONT

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(By wireless to Sayville).—Attempts of the French and British troops on the Somme front near Les Boeufs and La Maisonette, to advance yesterday were defeated by the Germans, the war office announced to-day. The statement says:—

"Army group of Prince Rupprecht.—The activity of the fighting on the Somme was limited by unfavorable weather. Detachment of the enemy which advanced against our positions northeast and east of Les Boeufs were driven back by our fire. An attack of a French company against La Maisonette failed, equally without success were attempts of hand-grenade squads to enter our new trenches south of Blanches, attacks of stronger French forces against Ablaincourt and on both sides of the
